Interactive student K-12 participation is one of the most effective delivery methods for the often difficult and abstract concepts of diversity and inclusion.

Prepared under the supervision of curriculum development specialists from the Sarasota County School District, our age-appropriate lessons address applicable learning intentions and success criteria expected of every student while engaging students in our core values: diversity, inclusion, integrity, and respect.

These lesson plans accompanying PowerPoint presentations utilize EOD artwork and quotes to convey lessons on diversity.

Diversity, Equity, and Inclusivity Resources for Classrooms

Difference -- however we might define it -- is good. It makes us who we are and makes the world wonderful. Students must understand that, and strive for a more inclusive world that values difference, practices empathy, and extinguishes oppressive forces like racism, sexism, homophobia, ableism, and beyond. These picks -- which highlight our world's vast diversity and promote equity -- will open students' minds, get them to reflect on their own privileges, and help them better understand other people, perspectives, and cultures. Some of these picks will also cultivate students' perspective-taking and integrity, putting students on the path to social change and activism.
